Waste

Additional Feedback:

I think that as long as chickens (just like any other animal) are in a clean, safe environment, given the proper care, it is fine to own them. Unfortunately, there are people that don't treat animals the right way, and for those people, the animals should not remain with them, being dogs, cats, chickens, etc. However, on the other hand there are people that are very responsible and care for their animals a lot and shouldn't be punished by not owning in this case chickens, just because other people don't know how to follow the regulations to have chickens safe and in a clean area where they are provided with the proper care and attention.

Other - The aesthetic look of the coop

Additional Feedback:

I have lived in the City of Gahanna for 20 years and I love it; however, ninety percent of the residents can't even take care of their own yard. I shudder the thought of adding chickens to the mix. I currently live in a neighborhood with an HOA. I hope they never change the rules to allow chickens. I believe that allowing chickens in our city will affect housing prices especially if there is a coop located next door to a house for sale. I would never even consider buying a house with a chicken coop next door. This is an urban suburb not farmland.

Additional Feedback:

Chickens are farm animals, not pets. Keeping chickens is an agricultural activity, not a trendy hobby.

Chickens carry several diseases; some human transferable, including Salmonella which can be transferred through handling and eggs. Chickens carry lice and mites.

Chicken Coops create dust, odor, harbor bacteria, attract flies, opportunistic predators and rodents.

Gahanna is a suburban city, not residential farmland.

Additional Feedback:

I have concerns that it will be properly regulated activity. Gahanna has a small code enforcement section now and adding this seems like it will shift resources in an unneeded way. I have great concerns that in their backyard, people won't follow the rules closely and maintain the waste as they should (it happens with dogs now). Adding the burden of regulating this for the city is a cost that should be carefully estimated and shared with people. To add a hobby option for people may be nice for them but if takes time and resources away from current code enforcement, that seems tough to justify. Cities are not farms and I have no desire for our city to smell like a farm.

Additional Feedback:

It really makes me wonder why the city is even entertaining this for 5-7 residents. It seems no one can give the exact amount. I live beside one of the residents who built a chicken coup with out a permit and has 7 chickens. All illegally and city council has yet to act on it. Why? I am not against chickens, however I believe outside city limits is where they belong. Not next door! The city has proposed a limit of 3 chickens which in reality will yield very few eggs. If they plan on putting them on the dinner plate the last thing I want to live beside is a slaughter house.

Additional Feedback:

Far too many GAHANNA residents do not take care of the dogs or cats they already have. These pets are allowed to run free without supervision or boundaries. do not think chickens would be any different. I already have cats using my flowerbeds as litter boxes - with very little that can be done one about it. My family has been attacked by dogs twice (while walking our leashed dog). It is a great source of frustration that I have to worry about this. I do not want to add another potential source of animal waste or smell to the place in which I live.

The lots most of us live in are too small (.25 acre or less) for chickens to reside in without being a burden on someone else. Most neighborhoods Gahanna not allow or discourage privacy fences. I really do not want to live next to a farm. I made the choice to live in the city.

Other - property devaluation

Additional Feedback:

The city currently cannot/does not enforce residents being allowed to have chickens. Second, once someone invest the funds needed to have a respectable chicken coop, any saving gained by raising chickens for eggs will be lost. The result may be poor standards of what is acceptable for a chicken coop. If your home is valued in $175,00 up range, that value would be impacted negatively by structures of poor quality. Third, chickens will attract fox and coyotes - both of which are undesirable. Last, there are 35,000 residents in Gahanna (give or take), allowing the President of city Council amend existing laws regarding livestock for a mere handful "of constituents" is only self serving in his interest.

Additional Feedback:

Chickens are not an appropriate animal in a residential area. There are good reasons why they are and have primarily been kept on farms for over a hundred years. Suburban lifestyles don't mix well with farm/rural life. This explains the development pattern witnessed in the United States since the industrial revolution. People choose the suburbs over city or rural life in an effort to escape issues associated with other ways of life such as noise and odor. It is a fact that chickens produce odors and noise. Odor and noise affect property values. They negatively affect property values. Reduced property values reduces the effectiveness of our local government. Less revenue means the city will not be able to fund all the programs and services needed. I hope the folks in favor of chickens won't complain when road improvements are delayed, park programs are cut, or other services are suspended or cut.

In my opinion, the cons far out way the positives. Therefore, it is my opinion that Gahanna does not need a new chicken ordinance. It should also be noted that the current rules and regulations allow for chickens on certain properties. If folks would like to have chickens then they can locate to an appropriately zoned property and still maintain residency in Gahanna.

We did not move to Gahanna to live in a "farm" environment. If people want to raise chickens, and have all that comes with it (odors, drawing other critters to the area, etc) they should have chosen to live in a rural setting. Choosing to live in an urban "neighborhood" is just that. Let's keep it neighborly

Chickens and/or coop should not be visible from any neighboring home. A neighbor should be able to deny permission for any reason.

Written permission must be obtained from homeowners with direct visibility of the coop.

If a home is sold, the new homeowner must also give written permission. Without it, the coop must be removed.

If the City allowed backyard chickens, what would be your primary concerns? (check all that apply)

Noise

Predators

Other - Nearby home values could drop, or increase difficult of selling a nearby home.

Additional Feedback:

I am an informed resident, as I have family members who raise chickens (not in Gahanna). In general, I don't oppose chickens. However, chickens effect neighbors and their ability to sell a home. Other arguments:

- Noise - while the decibel level of chickens is compared to "human conversation", it's non-stop noise. I tolerate people talking on their cell phones when they are walking their dogs, but I would not want someone standing on my sidewalk talking all day long. An occasional barking dog is acceptable; incessant barking is not. Chicken noise is constant.

- "Coops can be more beautiful than a shed" - a terrible argument. Most coops are ugly. Most sheds are ugly. Neither should be permitted because people simply don't maintain them. They are eyesores.

- "Not in my back yard." I don't mind if someone across the neighborhood raises chickens, as long as I don't see or hear it. If my neighbor raised them, I'd be unhappy and embarrassed when I had company. Any homeowner who can be visually or audibly affected by chickens should have the right to refuse permits for that neighbor.

- Ask Clintonville - The increase in rodents (particularly rats), predators, and resident complaints are well documented in Clintonville city records.

Additional Feedback:

I read often from locals who cry about how expansive Gahanna is getting and they wished it was still a little small town farming community. But now some of these same people are crying again about chickens and becoming a farming community. Which is it? Chickens can do a lot of good and I think its important to teach our children ways to provide their own food.

Chickens can carry many diseases. I for one have seen first hand as an RN too many cases of salmonella poisoning. Raising chickens and or housing them should not be permitted in city limits. Chickens can and should be raised in a safe healthy environment such as the country. Where people are well educated on raising this animal for certain purposes as well as be able to provide a safe environment for these animals. Therefore, I do not support raising or having chickens here in the city limits where our kids play.

I feel this is simply an area that cannot be effectively regulated/managed. Each person has ideas of what is acceptable and appropriate as far as the level of maintenance and cleanliness for chicken coops. Our neighborhoods are currently riddled with homes that do not have acceptable levels of maintenance, and may not be in compliance with existing codes. Is there currently a permit for every deck and permit required home improvement project in Gahanna? No. Is the city able to manage that? Realistically, No. Approving chickens on lots of less than an acre is a slippery slope on which I do not believe the city should embark.

Backyard Chickens are a wonderful thing. They are quiet and require little care. I do feel the # of chickens should be 6. The State require chicks to be sold in 6. Due to the fact that Chickens are Flock animals. Owning them is a personal decision. And. I should not have to involve anyone else .

To whom it may concern,

The local 'farm to table' movement can be an important consideration in purchasing food for our families.

There are a multitude of local purchasing options for eggs: 'free range', 'grass fed', 'non-GMO', 'organic' from a plethora of stores and farms within a 5-15 minute drive of Gahanna.

I do not believe that chickens should be allowed in Gahanna on lots less than an acre.

Best regards,

George Mrus

Additional Feedback:

As it stands today the City knows several families are in violation of current code and HOA restrictions. Yet the code is not enforced. If a neighbor complains then the neighbors name is provided when someone goes to the home = bad relations in the neighborhood. After the initial visit there is no follow up to insure that chickens have been removed = bad neighborhood relations. People who object are viewed as 'picky' by those who have violated the code. If the code is modified, how does Gahanna intend to improve current, long-standing non-enforcement posture? The same concern exists regarding the number of pets; while there is a five pet limit on cats and dogs, a blind eye is turned to violators. Sometimes the excuse is used as dog or cat rescue participant. Which means you can violate the code? I didn't move to a rural area. I moved to an urban based suburb.

Urban farming is on the rise, and Gahanna has a great mix of neighborhoods (varying yard sizes, yards that are a bit more rural) and this can only benefit everyone. Those who wish to do backyard chickens and those who can benefit from fresh eggs! Having grown up on a farm, I know that most of the concerns that 'city' people have are due to incorrect information. Responsible chicken ownership would not yield problems, only benefits. Education is key!

Should the City allow backyard chickens on lots less than one (1) acre?

Yes, and I would OWN chickens

Please list up to three (3) regulations you would prioritize as the most important to implement.

One must have proper housing for chickens(many chicken coups aren't much bigger than a dog house)

Fenced in yard (preferably w/ 6 ft privacy fencing)

The rules should be same as for cat and dog owners. Size of yard/land does not matter (Many of whom don't obey the laws yet complain about chickens)

If the City allowed backyard chickens, what would be your primary concerns? (check all that apply)

Other - Residents fearing what they do not know. (People w/o chickens)

Additional Feedback:

Most people do not understand chickens at all. If you compare them to dogs and cats then they are quieter, make less mess, less odor, and will actually follow you around and come when called. As a dog can be aggressive chickens are not. The chickens only make noise when they are frightened or upset and that's not all that loud. Dogs on the other hand can bark non stop anytime day or night. Chickens actually go to bed at dark. And chickens (hens)do not crow at sunrise, Rooster's do. Their waste is actually less than a medium sized dog, even with multiple chickens combined. We live in Gahanna and Gahanna is already full of predators. Most are nocturnal so residents don't typically see them. Therefore, they don't attract them out of the blue. Not as many people will have chickens as the numbers of dogs or even stray cats for that matter. People worry about them increasing pests. However, they attract no more than the feces and food from the cats and dogs. And, they actually eat the pests which helps eliminate them without chemicals from exterminators. They do make great pets especially for those that may be allergic to cats and dogs such as 2 of my sons. They have not had any allergic reactions to chickens. They produce their own eggs without a rooster and the eggs are healthier (Organic) and last than those from the super market. There really are many benefits to having backyard chickens without the frightening made up presumptions. Do not fear the unknown. People are afraid because it's "Different". I was too at first, but now I love them just like other pets.

Many homes in Gahanna rest on acreage but most do not. When Gahanna was a predominately farming/ ranch community live stock would be expected. There are residence who can support livestock currently on their land. Allowing chickens in yards places burden not only on the family raising the chickens, but the homes surrounding due to all of the above objections. Anyone who has actually raised chickens is not being honest with themselves if they do not admit to the tremendous problems yard chickens would cause to the neighborhoods in our community

Also, our lots are too small to humanely house chickens. Our lots are also too small to avoid the non-chicken-owning neighbor from having to deal with the chickens in some capacity-- noise, smell, bugs, predators, etc. JUST SAY NO!

Neighbors on Venetian Way, that back up to houses in Prairie Township, suffered through this a year or so ago.

The noise virtually destroyed the peaceful neighborhood. In addition, hawks were attracted to the area and killed several chickens.

A realtor was finally instrumental in getting the nuisance eliminated when it was negatively affecting the sale of a home that she had listed.

If folks want to raise chickens, let them relocate to an agriculturally zoned area. They do not have the right to diminish the value of my property.

Additional Feedback:

Dogs would be the chickens biggest predators. I lived in a suburb once where the neighbor had chickens and all my dog did was pace the fence wanting those chickens. Anyone who has lived on a farm knows that dogs are a natural predator of chickens. I believe this would cause more issues between neighbors.

Other - Insects

Additional Feedback:

I've kept chickens for many years when I lived in rural Delaware county on 10 acres. I know how dirty they are, how noisy they can be, the insects that move in due to the waste, and how many predators they attract that come for the eggs, and even the chickens. If someone wants livestock, they should consider not living in the suburbs, especially an almost inner-ring suburb. On the west side of town, we have a hard enough time getting people to properly maintain their properties - simple things like mowing the lawn, keeping buildings maintained, parking on lawns and other common issues. If we can't rely on people to what is required now, adding more variances like this will be more of a burden to neighborhoods. Adding the option for livestock will quickly get out of hand and become a nuisance to the vast majority of residents.

Additional Feedback:

I am opposed to chickens on under an acre of land because I feel that these smaller plots are not adequate space for several chickens without significantly affecting their neighbors. My main concerns are with chicken owners who will not take care of their land or their chickens well and will allow their property to be overrun by odor, waste and bare yards. If this can be policed without putting more burden on our PD, I would be more open to supporting such an ordinance.

Furthermore, Gahanna already has an issue with skunks in the area (partially due to cat or other animal food being left outside). If the city is prepared to start discussing adding outdoor animals (and subsequently animal food outside), I would like to see them also attempt to address the skunks. If they are not prepared to, then I think the chickens need to be tabled until such a time in which they will not add to this ongoing problem.

I am not adamantly opposed to people having chickens. I'm just concerned that there will be those who will not maintain them well (including those who already illegally have chickens) and that it will place an undue burden on the City to have to monitor this. There are more important things that the City should be using that staff time for such as things in the GoForward Gahanna plan.

We very much support urban chicken keeping. Our younger daughter has had chickens for several years - not only is the healthy egg supply great, but my grandchildren love watching and playing with their chickens. Our older daughter has been leading an initiative in her city (for over 2 years) to get the issue on the ballot (<https://www.facebook.com/bycinhuber/>). After working the polls with her to obtain signatures, it became clear to me that many residents were just uneducated on the subject. Hopefully good and accurate messages can be spread in Gahanna!

Chickens are loud and dirty. They are fine for rural settings, but not in higher density areas. It is hard enough to get some people to mow and pick up dog waste and other trash. I Do NOT want chickens in Gahanna. We already have issues with predators (fox, raccoons, skunks, etc.) and this will only add to the problem we already have. The chickens also attract mice and rats. With the attraction of animals like these, this puts our neighborhood kids at risk of encountering such predators as well as those who run/walk early in the mornings just before the sun rises.

I'm so happy that you've let it go to the public! I really hope the people that are against chickens take the time to listen. They're not the dirty, smelly foul that they're assuming. I'm going to also assume that none of them have had experience with chickens first hand. They're lovely, sweet pets that can become attached just like a dog or cat. This seems to be more like a stereotype that chickens are low class. I'm going to point out that Barbra Streisand, Jennifer Aniston and Julia Roberts own chickens and they're anything but low class. When done right, it's much more Martha Stewart-esk. I really hope you give it a chance.

Chickens are farm animals and belong on a farm not in subdivisions. Our lots are too small for farm animals. We will have an increase in predators (coyotes, fox, rats, mice, raccoons, skunks, hawks, etc.) they carry diseases, and they are dirty. This is a hobby/pet, nothing more. Please say NO on this issue. If I wanted to live on or near a farm I could have done that, and so should people who want to own chickens. I chose to live in a non-farm area on purpose. Don't diminish my property value and quality of life for the few who should have chosen to live in the country.....JUST SAY NO! I can think of no reason you would say yes, don't you agree? Ask yourself why Westerville, Worthington (150 yards from neighboring property), New Albany, Dublin, Grove City, Hilliard, Reynoldsburg, Canal Winchester, Upper Arlington, and Pickerington have said NO?

Additional Feedback:

If you take the time to do some research you will quickly find that chickens are not the nuisance they are made out to be. The benefits far outweigh the negatives. Sustainability and self sufficiency, less reliance on factory farmed eggs. If you saw the conditions egg laying chickens lived in you may not ever buy another egg at the store again. Chickens are far more quiet and have much less waste than even the smallest dog. To me it goes along with gardening, bee keeping, use of fewer chemicals in our yards and all around taking good care of the earth. Here is a good link to get some basic information.

I have lived in communities with chickens, but they were not in urban areas. I feel that there would be a risk of predators (coyotes, raccoons, etc.), as well as waste products which can produce noxious odors in our neighborhoods. The tracts in a neighborhood are generally small, so there would be forced interaction with neighboring chickens. If the lot size was an acre or more, this would not be a problem for me, but I do not want to live in close proximity to chickens.

Additional Feedback:

I think Gahanna would benefit greatly from this proposal. Backyard chickens would help to foster a greater sense of community within our neighborhoods. I have several friends in neighboring cities that have them and are shocked that we are not allowed to have them in Gahanna.

Additional Feedback:

I believe the city government should NOT be allowed to dictate what I have in my back yard in this regard. I think it violates my civil liberties.
