Gahanna City Council met in Regular Session on Monday, October 6, 2025, in Council Chambers. President of Council Merisa K. Bowers called the meeting to order at 7:04 p.m. Vice President of Council Trenton I. Weaver delivered an Invocation and led members in the Pledge of Allegiance. The agenda was published on October 3, 2025.

Present 7 - Merisa K. Bowers, Jamille Jones, Nancy R. McGregor, Kaylee Padova, Stephen A. Renner, Michael Schnetzer, and Trenton I. Weaver

B. ADDITIONS OR CORRECTIONS TO THE AGENDA:

President Bowers explained two additions under the Presentations section of the agenda. The American Legion Post 797 was present to receive the joint resolution/proclamation honoring the Vietnam Traveling Memorial Wall. A presentation from Economic Development Jeff Gottke on the Creekside Redevelopment Plan was also added to the agenda.

C. PRESENTATIONS:

1. Joint Resolution and Proclamation Presentation by Council and Mayor
Recipient: Killian Sullivan, 2025 Young Birder of the Year
In Celebration of World Animal Day and World Habitat Month

President Bowers introduced Killian Sullivan, a 2025 Young Birder of the Year. Mr. Sullivan was recognized in conjunction with World Animal Day and World Habitat Month. Mr. Sullivan is a Gahanna Middle School East student and was recognized by the American Birding Association as Young Birder of the Year, which recognizes his exceptional skills and leadership in birding. He documented nearly 700 bird species across the United States and founded Buckeye Birding, which enhances education, conservation, and the community of birding. President Bowers explained that this recognition coincides with World Animal Day, which promotes humane and ethical care of animals, along with World Habitat Month, which encourages habitat conservation for humans and animals worldwide. She explained ways in which Gahanna has demonstrated commitment to its wildlife and engaged in conservation efforts.

Mr. Sullivan shared a family experience of traveling to Lake Tahoe to enjoy the experiences nature offered. While camping, he encountered large, blue and black birds. Interested in learning more, Sullivan began researching the type of bird and quickly became invested in birding as a hobby. Mr. Sullivan recognized having access to resources such as Gahanna's parks and the Gahanna Woods State Nature Preserve. He began traveling all over Ohio to see different bird species. Eventually, they traveled throughout the United States and Canada. Mr. Sullivan has traveled to 49 states for his hobby, resulting in him becoming the youngest birder to see 700 species in the country. In an effort to give back and show his gratitude, he became active in conservation efforts. He produced a local field guide that he printed and delivered to over 200 homes. He built a theater station, constructed brush piles, and removed invasive honeysuckle to improve the habitat in Gahanna Grove. He also volunteered as a guide for the largest birding festival in the country. Mr. Sullivan described specific unique birds and their traits. He noted that in 1973, there were only 7 bald eagle nests in Ohio. This year, the Ohio Department of Natural Resources identified 964 nests in the state. He described being invited to share his experiences at a City Council meeting as an honor, and encouraged residents to grab their binoculars, explore nature, and protect the habitats that host the phenomenal birds.

Mayor Jadwin commended Mr. Sullivan on his articulate comments. She expressed how impressed she was with his accomplishments in birding and commended his parents for supporting his efforts. President Bowers closed by expressing gratitude to Mr. Sullivan for bringing such attention to the cause and expressed support for his efforts on behalf of Council.

2. Joint Resolution and Proclamation Presentation by Council and Mayor Recipient: American Legion Post 797 & Volunteers In Honor of the Vietnam Traveling Memorial Wall in Gahanna

President Bowers turned attention to Mayor Jadwin to introduce the joint proclamation/resolution. Mayor Jadwin explained that for five days Gahanna was able to host the Vietnam Traveling Memorial Wall. It created a space for reflection and healing and made the wall accessible for those who cannot travel to see it. There are 58,470 names engraved on the wall, which represent the names of the service members who gave their lives during the Vietnam War. Two Gahanna names were on the wall as well. Mayor Jadwin described the events of the weekend as moving, and it was so successful due to the efforts of the American Legion. She stated it was an honor to recognize American Legion Post 797 for their year-long efforts in planning the events that took place over the weekend.

Gary Filaseta, a representative of American Legion Post 797, thanked Council and Mayor Jadwin for their support. He stated it had taken two years to have the Vietnam Memorial Wall come to Gahanna. There were extensive efforts to coordinate and fundraise. He also extended thanks to members of Parks & Recreation and remarked on their quick work in putting the project together. He closed by thanking the officials again for their support of veterans and the American Legion.

President Bowers remarked on her experiences viewing the wall and attending the event, which she described as beautiful and moving. Councilwoman McGregor expressed that each name on the wall is the mark of a life cut short. She shared that many members of her family, including grandchildren, are members of the military, and they sign up to give everything, including their lives if needed, to the country. She remarked that the wall represents over 58,000 who gave their lives and thanked the American Legion for bringing the memorial wall to the Gahanna.

3. Creekside Redevelopment Presentation to Council Jeff Gottke, Director of Economic Development

Economic Development Director Jeff Gottke provided an overview of the Creekside Reimagined project. Mr. Gottke stated the intent of his presentation was to reiterate the basic facts of each project phase both for the council and the general public. He explained there are two separate projects. One is a public City of Gahanna project. Using a PowerPoint presentation, Creekside Plaza was indicated in a red rectangle. The projects happening in this space include flood mitigation and plaza revitalization that will be undertaken by the city, happening on city-owned and controlled property. These projects will bring the city into compliance with FEMA standards, prevent further damage, while also increasing visibility of the plaza to the public, add amenities, and be more user-friendly. The intention of the revitalization is to not only bring the plaza up to FEMA standards, but also to give the public more reason to visit and stay in the Creekside area and patronize local businesses.

A second, private project was outlined in Director Gottke's presentation in yellow and green. The first phase is mixed-use and consists of 263 apartments, a 55-70 room hotel, two restaurants, and a self-parked parking structure. The second phase is a townhome component on High Street. The project is privately funded. The chosen developers were vetted and are pledging $100 million of their own money, equity, investors, and loans. The developers believe there is a market for the project in Gahanna and hope to create an environment of more people in the Creekside area. Director Gottke described three types of people that can be brought into the area. These include workers in the area businesses, residents in the apartments and townhomes, and visitors within the hotel. Director Gottke explained how the private development is complementary to public development. Having more people in the Creekside area equates to more people staying at the plaza and supporting local businesses. Though the projects are separate, they are complimentary.

Director Gottke explained the construction will be primarily of a modular design. The developer builds the apartment units off site, then they are brought on site where they are put together and finished. The units can be built faster in this way. This method is also more cost effective and reduces construction waste, resulting in a more environmentally friendly project. The apartments are also built to meet LEED standards. The second phase will begin after the first. The land transfer for the High Street properties is planned to happen after the land transfer for the Mill Street properties. So, the public parking lot will be retained for a longer period of time while parties work to find a solution for the anticipated loss of 65 parking spaces. Finally, there are performance guarantees built into the development agreement. The developer must meet certain standards, or the property reconveys back to the city or CIC again. This also encourages timely and efficient development of projects. Director Gottke explained additional steps that must take place, including creation of a TIF and NCA, Planning Commission review, engineering review, traffic impacts, utility demands, and stormwater impacts.

Director Gottke closed by inviting both Council and the public to stay engaged in the progress of the projects. An open-house-style engagement session is scheduled for Thursday, October 9 from 4:00-7:00 on the Creekside Plaza. Additional opportunities for engagement include a Committee of the Whole meeting on October 13th and a City Council meeting on October 20th. A website dedicated to the redevelopment is forthcoming. In the meantime, questions can be directed to creekside@gahanna.gov.

D. HEARING OF VISITORS:

Tim McClurg, 935 Leaflock Court, shared his opinions on the Creekside development. He felt the public parking lot near The Gahanna Sanctuary should continue to be used for the Blues & Jazz festival, adding that it is also used by the Sanctuary and for many downtown events. He hoped local businesses that closed at 5:00 p.m. could open their parking lots to be used for public parking, whether paid or unpaid. He appreciated the idea of having a hotel in the area, but suggest it be located at Creekside so it could overlook the creek. He did not feel it would be well-suited on the other side of Mill Street. He also inquired as to what the bridge would look like, which would be built across the street, connecting the parking garage and the hotel. He hoped it could be designed in a way to draw attention to the area. Mr. McClurg also wondered what the cost of the necessary Creekside flooding mitigation repairs would be, compared to the planned improvements, noting they were presented as a package. Additionally, Mr. McClurg wondered if there was any recourse that the city could take regarding the original construction of Creekside, noting that new structures often have guarantees for a certain period of time. He also wondered what guarantees would be in place for the new improvements to ensure the same problems do not recur. He also asked whether the improvements would help with existing high rents and lack of development at Creekside. Mr. McClurg continued with his questioning, wondering if Gahanna purchases the buildings from the CIC, would they sell them to the developer or retain ownership. Mr. McClurg closed his remarks by stating that he hoped the opening of 825 Tech Center Drive would be as successful as the opening of the new Resch's Bakery location in Gahanna.

Arlene Sheak, 1410 Sedgefield Drive. Ms. Sheak commended Mayor Jadwin, and all involved in the Creekside redevelopment plan. She stated she has been a Gahanna resident for eight years, and she appreciated that the public has an opportunity to be involved in the project. She acknowledged the planning of apartments that would include lower income units, which she stated was a great precedent. She looked forward to seeing the projects develop.

Chris Corder, 184 Brookhill Drive. Mr. Corder stated he has been a Gahanna resident since 2021 but has been a member of VFW Post 4719 since 2013. He was impressed by the redevelopment plans, though he shared concerns about parking. However, he felt this could be worked out during the project's second phase. Mr. Corder expressed longer-term concerns over the Tax Increment Financing (TIF) that is being established, especially with state-level considerations to eliminate property taxes. He hoped recourse could be considered if the TIF planning falls apart. He ended his comments by thanking officials for their work, acknowledging that the project plans exceed his expectations.

Justin Yafanaro, 694 Kenilworth Court. Mr. Yafanaro shared his thoughts on the Creekside plan. He felt the plans were exactly the type of development needed in Gahanna, and that a mix of smaller and medium-sized buildings would increase the amount of people and local businesses in the area and therefore increase the vibrancy of Creekside. He acknowledged the parking concerns but noted those living in the area would be able to walk to Creekside's amenities and events and felt the parking spaces lost from the public lot could be mitigated. He closed by reiterating that he felt the proposed type of development is what the area needs.

He encouraged residents to think about what can be done at the local level and in the strength of the community. He felt there was a nexus in his mind, in the sense of remembering those who had fallen in a war, while also looking forward and determining how to progress as a society. He described the experience of seeing injustices happen at the national level, including what he described as the ripping apart of the Constitution. He felt that the community is supposed to build something better and felt that a good place to start was with sustainability and the theme of local roots, and asking what it means to be American.
