Commissioners, as you may remember, I turned my scoring in at the end of the last meeting, before Ethan created his matrix. Since we are voting on each proposition individually, I scored them all individually and did not use the grouping that Ethan did. I thought the groupings were great for discussion purposes, but I don't remember us voting to score in groups. Although I may be wrong. I felt that it was unfair to bring down the scores of the other proposals, for example the ones concerning Council, because of the '4' I gave for changing Public Notice. However, since everyone else scored the groupings, I think it's even more unfair to have a '0' in those columns. Therefore, I think Jeremy's suggestion to average the scores and use that result is the best way to get a number for those sections. As such, my score for #3 would be 15, bringing its total to 125. #5 would be 11, resulting in a total to 112. And #11 would be 20, with a total of 126. I hope everyone finds this a good compromise. If not, please let me know. Thanks.
